RESEARCH

RESEARCH INTERESTS

My primary research interests include exclusive and inclusive communication and the communicative construction of systems of exclusion. Specifically, I explore the creation, maintenance, and termination of exclusive communication, such as stigma, ostracism, bullying, and other forms of social rejection, as well as inclusive communication like dialogue, deliberation, and other forms of egalitarian communication. My research often takes me to the realm of ethics and morality, social identity, relational communication, and recently the intersection of risk discourse and exclusive communication.
